

Inclusive Culture

What were your first impressions of the culture at HSBC?

When I applied for HSBC, what attracted me the most is the diversified and inclusive culture that HSBC has and provides to all employees within this organisation.

It is so diverse and inclusive, and being an international student it's definitely attractive to see the firm is so committed to its diverse culture.

One of the great things that HSBC does is encourage you to pursue personal growth and wellbeing outside of your immediate role. I've been able to join the ethnic diverse Early Careers Committee which is an employee resource group.

I work in a very large team with a variety of different people from different experiences to different backgrounds and it really does drive home just being yourself and bringing your whole self to work.
