Meet Michael – US

Starting out as a history major in university, I had very little background on finance or HSBC, but as I made the change to finance and completed my internship at HSBC, I was hooked.

The team was so welcoming and supportive, and having returned as a graduate, I am actually in the same team, and it’s great to have so many familiar faces.

I wouldn’t say that my early years were straight forward, but despite the challenges, I’ve been inspired by my mom, who loves to volunteer and give back to the community.

When I discovered HSBC, I realized I could put my research skills to good use while making a meaningful impact through the likes of renewable energy and supporting students from my old university.

Landing an internship at HSBC was a game changer. It felt like a family from day one. The onboarding was intense, but it set us up for success, and my bosses have been great mentors and the key to my success.

Being part of this diverse community, it feels right. If I were to give one piece of advice to future graduates, I’d say it’s worth it in the end.

Work hard and be proud of yourself. Don’t forget to learn from hardships.
